5. Staying in Jerusalem

Last Wednesday, David Brodet, chairman of the Jerusalem Foundation, and Anat Zur, the foundation's managing director, hosted an event in the capital entitled "Staying in Jerusalem." The event was held in the historic Beit Alliance building adjacent to the Mahaneh Yehuda market, which has been preserved and which over the past two years has become a hotbed for artists from all walks of life in Jerusalem. Amir Biram, CEO and founder of the JILV investment fund, spoke during the event about the importance of offering young people an incentive to make their home in the city. Attending were Zvika Agmon, Ronit Abramson, Dan Ziskind and Yuval Rakavy.
